Now is time to plant trees

ing crews and getting planting operations underway.

Various methods may be used to plant trees, according to Smith, and planting bars may be borrowed without cost from the Division of Forestry.

Those wishing to plant a large number of trees on a fairly level area of land can rent mechanical planters from the Division of Forestry. One person can plant from 800 to 1500 seedlings per day using hand tools, and a two-man crew using a tractor-drawn mechanical planter can plant from 8,000 to 10,000 seedlings in a day.

The Division of Forestry stocks 18 different types of trees for sale to persons interested in planting, according to Smith. Financial incentives are available through the Virginia Reforestation of Timberlands Program and the Federal Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service. Smith says these incentives help pay for preparing the planting areas, planting trees and releasing desirable trees from competition.

Residents seeking further information on the planting programs available should contact Wayne Bowman, Appomattox County Forester, or David Smith, Chief Forest Warden for Appomattox County at P. O. Box 726, Appomattox, (352-7279).
